Your Window to the World

At the beginning of the Pandemic, when we were told to stay home, people turned to the internet in search of social interaction. It turned into a good thing for me. I saw that an online Book Club was being started. They were going to read one of my favorite authors and so I decided I would participate. Six people joined that night, and it went very well. We decided to meet each week until the world opened up again, and now, 3 years later, we meet each month to chat about our lives and our favorite novels. I even meet up with 2 of the ladies from the group, and we travel to book events together once a year.

I want to see how the patrons feel about starting a Book Club here at the library.
